

Why Are You Undecided?

Before you can choose a major, it is important to know the reasons you are undecided and just how undecided you are about a major, or even a career.

Take a moment to think about why you haven't yet chosen a major. What are the reasons you are undecided? What is preventing you from making a decision? Below are a few examples, but be sure to be honest about YOUR reasons for being undecided. List the reasons in the space provided.

Some examples, just to name a few, for why some students claim to be undecided:

- You don't want to make the "wrong" choice.
- You don't know yet what information or options are out there, or even where to look for that information
- You don't have an interest in any area of study.
- You have too many interests and can't narrow down your options.
- You aren't used to having to make your own decisions.
- You are not ready to commit to a choice.
- You have a career chosen, but do not know which majors are best for that career.
- You do not want to be in college.

Next, take a moment to consider just how undecided you are about a major, and then put a "✓" next to the statement that best applies to you.

- I have no idea what to major in.
 I have some ideas, but I am interested in too many areas to decide
 I have an idea, but I need more information first
 I have an idea, but I want to explore my options first
 I know what I want to major in, but I am not ready to declare

If you checked any of the statements expressing that you have some idea or interest, in what areas are you interested? Why are these of interest to you?
